

Privacy Statement and Data Protection

We are pleased about your interest in our homepage and our company. However, despite our efforts to examine the content carefully we cannot assume liability for external links to content other than our own.

To protect your private data that we acquire, process, and use during your visit of our homepage is of greatest importance to us. Your data are protected in accordance with legal rules and regulations. This Privacy Statement and Data Protection document provides you with information which data are acquired during your visit of our homepage and how they are used.

1. Data Acquisition and Processing

Every access to our homepage and every request of a file that is stored on the homepage are protocolled. The data storage is for statistical and internal system-related purposes. The protocol contains these data: The name of the requested file, date and time of the request, transferred amount of data, report about successful request, web browser, and requesting domain.

Additionally, we save the IP-address of the requesting computer. Any further personal data are only registered if you voluntarily provide this information, may it be within the scope of a survey or a registration.

2. Cookies

Our web pages use cookies. These cookies store data on your personal computer for technical session support in the memory of your browser.

FABINET keeps those cookies working on our websites and services to the stated ends and for selected contents or functions. Therefore, a cookie is used to recognize a user, thus adjusting the page content individually. This cookie is stored as long as the user wants to receive personalized contents. If we intend to use the cookie by way of exception to store personal data such as for the user recognition, we inform you about this separately.

3. Use and Third Party Disclosure

If you have made personal data available to us, we use them exclusively to answer your inquiries, for the contract management, and for technical administration.

Your personal data are only disclosed to any third party or otherwise made available when this is necessary for fulfilling the contract, such as forwarding data for an order to the supplier, or if it is necessary for accounting or if you have given your prior consent. You have the right to revoke a given approval at any time with effect for the future.

We delete the stored personal data if you revoke your approval of the storage, if the data are not used any longer for the original purpose that caused them to be stored, or if storing them is inadmissible for other legal reasons.

4. Right of Access

We will readily inform you on the personal data stored upon written inquiry.

Note on Data Safety:

We try hard to store your personal data in such a way that your data remain inaccessible for any third party; to that end, we use all technical and organizational possibilities. However, we are not able to guarantee full data security when relying on e-mail based communication, which is why we recommend you to use regular mail for confidential information.